

Re-Industrialization – Impact and Opportunities for Hong Kong

Speaker profile

Mr. Kay Matzner, International Project Manager, bei Fraunhofer-Gesellschaft

Kay Matzner, an economist, has been working as an international business developer and project manager for the Fraunhofer Institute for Factory Operation and Automation IFF for over fourteen years. His work is centered on international research policy and industrial cooperation issues. Through his work, he facilitates the development of the Fraunhofer IFF's international activities in China and India. He has extensive experience managing research projects, primarily in China and India but also in Japan, South Korea, New Zealand, Australia and Ukraine. He is one of the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research's officially appointed strategy advisors supporting and facilitating policy consultations aimed at developing Germany's international research cooperation with the People Republic of China in the field of ICT (including Industry 4.0)